

Snip 'n Style Scarves

7 Ways to use an old T-shirt

margoiscrafty.blogspot.com

1

1. Lay a t-shirt flat and line up the hem. Cut off the hem, and cut straight across just beneath the arms.

2. With the openings of the tube on either side, fold the tube, bringing the bottom up 1-2" from the top. (See illustration below left.) On the new bottom fold, make snips every 2.5" across the width of the tube.

3. Now using those snips as markers, cut all the way across the top layer. Leave the lower 2-3 inches uncut! (See photo left)

4. We now have long loops that are all attached at one end. Grab one loop and holding the uncut edge in the other hand, stretch it out. Your fabric should curl and stretch. Continue with all loops..

5. Take the hem that you cut off the t-shirt. Snip off a 6 inch length. Now, gather up your fabric at the seam (where all the loops meet). Bind up this edge with our length off the hem. (See photo to the right)

2

1. Follow steps 1-4 as above, but cut all the way through. This will give you individual loops.

2. Take your stacked loops and arrange them as desired.

You might pull some higher than others to create a cascade effect, knotting them at the desired length and cutting off the excess, or you could use a variety of colors or widths.

3. Follow step 5 above.

1. Lay t-shirt out flat (make sure you can get 8-12 circles)
2. Use paper plate to trace circles on t-shirt then cut out the circles.
3. Cut each fabric circle into a spiral. Begin the spiral at about 2" wide and curve inward.
4. Stretch each piece of fabric. Glue pieces end to end if you want a longer length. Lay all pieces together.
5. Use another piece of material to tie all scarf pieces together. Do this at the center after layering them to your taste. The knot will be at the back of your neck.

From <http://tidymom.net/2011/how-to-make-a-scarf/> View her tutorial online for a video to see how it is done, along with additional tutorials.

1. Align the hem of your shirt, then cut straight across, just below the arms. Leave the hem intact.

2. Cut strips from the edge roughly 2/3 of the way toward the hem as shown to the right. The thinner the strips, the more fringe you will have. Cut both sides of the shirt.

3. Pull the cut pieces to curl the fringe, then pull the whole piece to style it. The hemmed edge will rest around your neck. Add beads or costume jewelry to your taste.

For another version of the fringe scarf, use the part above the rectangle you cut in step 1 above. Cut the sleeves and neckline off then cut an arc in the remaining fabric.

2. Cut fringe up to the new neckline but be careful not to cut through.

3. Pull the fringe to the desired length.

From <http://www.collegefashion.net/>

6 (the easiest scarf ever)

1. Lay the shirt flat and cut straight across
2. Stretch, style, and wear.
3. For the second easiest scarf ever, cut multiple times across to make more sections that are thinner and can be layered.

1. Lay the shirt flat and line up the hem. Cut off the arms, neckline, and hem.

2. Cut strips about 1.5" wide. Sort your strips by length and color.

3. GET CREATIVE! Piece the strips together by twisting, braiding, mixing color, adding beads, or costume jewelry.

4. Follow step 5 from in the first tutorial.

<http://www.ninthandbird.com>

7 (Get Creative!)

Don't mind sewing? Try these at home!

Makeitandloveit.com

randomly shirred
scarf
www.makeloveit.com

Makeitandloveit.com

Ruffle Scarf
vermillionrules.blogspot.com

braided
scarf tutorial putapuredukes.com

There are lots
more ideas online!
Google "t-shirt
scarf tutorial" to find more great ideas.